

DIXIE COLLEGE

St. George, Utah

Charter

There are many retired and semi-retired persons in the St. George area who are highly knowledgeable and broadly experienced in many intellectual fields and who consider continued learning to be of great value. These persons have a definite need and a strong desire to continue their intellectual pursuits and activities as part of a university or college community.

This group constitutes a substantial reservoir of knowledge and experience that should be maintained and enhanced through continued study and research, both for the well-being of the individuals concerned as well as for the contributions they can continue to make to the community.

To meet the special needs of this group, Dixie College authorizes by this Charter the establishment of the

INSTITUTE FOR CONTINUED LEARNING

The Institute for Continued Learning (ICL) will be an integral part of the Dixie College Community, functioning under the direction and administration of the President of Dixie College or his designated representative. It will be organized to enable its members to learn and teach in self-directed, informal study groups and, at the same time, participate in courses and special events as part of the College.

The organization, operation, membership requirements, fees, and facilities will be in accordance with the Constitution and By-laws of the Institute for Continued Learning, as approved by its membership and the President of Dixie College, or his designated representative.
